CHIEFS OF ONTARIO

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ONTARIO REGIONAL CHIEF IS CAUTIOUS ABOUT FEDERAL GOVERNMENT'S EDUCATION ANNOUNCEMENT CALLING IT SLIM ON DETAILS AND DIRECTION

Thunder Bay, ON (February 10, 2014) — Ontario Regional Chief Stan Beardy said he is approaching the Harper government's proposal for a renamed and updated First Nation education bill cautiously.

"Although Friday's announcement states that Canada and First Nations agree to work together on the passage of the new 'First Nation Control of First Nation Education Act' (FNCFNEA) and jointly develop the associated regulations, it is unclear how this agreement came about and how the joint work will be accomplished," Ontario Regional Chief Beardy said.

First Nations in Ontario have been adamant that the path forward is not delegated federal legislation but implementation of First Nations' inherent jurisdiction over First Nations' education through negotiation of nation-to-nation jurisdictional agreements.

As part of the announcement of the proposed renamed bill, the Prime Minister announced $1.25 billion per year in funding for aboriginal schools across Canada, which would increase by 4.5 per cent each year after 2016. Total funding proposed for reforms amount to $1.9 billion over several years beginning in 2016/17.

The proposed capital funding investment of $500 million over seven years would not even meet the needs of First Nations in Ontario let alone all of the First Nations within Canada. An analysis in 2012 revealed that it would take $242 to $354 million to bring schools in First Nation communities up to provincial standards.

"In announcing 'a new approach,' the Harper government continues to cut and exert restrictive guidelines on all funding including education funding for our representative organizations. For too long our children have been underfunded and denied opportunity and fairness," Regional Chief Beardy said.

There is a broad range of circumstances and they must be supported in the move to First Nations control. Some First Nations are already exercising control, others are ready to move and others must to design and implement their plan and vision.

Grand Chief Gord Peters of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians (AIAI) who holds the Chiefs of Ontario portfolio on education said his people want to develop their own education standards, articulation agreements and processes without federal government oversight.

"Our people have agreed that we must continue to assert our inherent jurisdiction over education by developing and implementing our own education laws and regulations which will lead to the establishment of our own education standards and systems," Grand Chief Peters said.

The Chiefs of Ontario is a political forum and a secretariat for collective decision making, action, and advocacy for the 133 First Nation communities located within the boundaries of the province of Ontario, Canada.
